THANKS, STATE WORKERS!

For putting Ohio
back on the road

Thousands of essential state
employees
worked over the holiday to help our state
recover from the ice and snow storm.

Welcome to winter in Ohio.

But thanks to our hardworking road crews,
Ohio's roads are now clear.

Crews from the Ohio Department of Transportation worked 53,000 hours to clear snow and ice from 714,000 miles of roadway.

We're proud of the work they and other essential state workers have done. Ohioans depend on the safety they provide.

But politicians like Jim Petro and Ken Blackwell want enormous cuts in the state workforce. If their proposals were adopted, clearing snow would get a lot harder — if not impossible — putting you and your families at risk.

If you are concerned about the loss of snowplow crews and other crucial state services, contact us at www.KeepOhioMoving.com to get more information.

And, if you see Jim Petro or Ken Blackwell, tell them to keep the ODOT crews fully staffed and prepared for Ohio's next emergency.
